

Project Name

OWN KARMA

"The Experience"

Genre:

Psychological • Luxury • Interactive • Cinematic

Length:

2–3 minutes

Goal:

Not to sell clothing.

To make visitors remember the experience.

Emotional Journey

Curiosity

↓

Mystery

↓

Self Reflection

↓

Discovery

↓

Belonging

↓

OWN KARMA

ACT I

THE VOID

Screen:

Pure black.

No logo.

No menu.

No navigation.

No scrolling indicator.

Nothing.

For three seconds...

Nothing happens.

The visitor wonders if the website is broken.

Then...

A tiny gold particle appears.

Not glowing aggressively.

Almost alive.

It breathes.

Slowly.

The cursor moves.

The particle follows the cursor gently, as if it recognizes the visitor.

A soft cinematic hum begins.

Not music.

Just atmosphere.

The visitor clicks.

The particle explodes into thousands of microscopic golden stars.

Everything disappears.

Fade to black.

ACT II

THE QUESTIONS

Still black.

One sentence.

Large typography.

Centered.

Who are you...

Fade.

When nobody is watching?

Fade.

Black.

What do you wear...

Fade.

When nobody needs to notice?

Fade.

What remains...

Fade.

When status disappears?

Fade.

Nothing.

Five seconds.

Silence.

Then...

A heartbeat.

One beat.

The screen opens.

ACT III

THE CORRIDOR

Now the visitor begins moving.

Not scrolling through a webpage.

Walking.

The page moves like a camera dolly.

A slow cinematic hallway.

Walls are made from floating memories.

Fabric.

Water.

Stone.

Stars.

Ancient geometric symbols.

Dust.

Fragments of handwritten philosophy.

Everything moves slowly.

Almost dreamlike.

No products.

Only atmosphere.

ACT IV

THE DISCOVERY

Instead of an About section...

The corridor opens into four enormous rooms.

ROOM ONE

Silence

Visual

Still black water.

One gold ripple.

Text

Every creation begins in silence.

ROOM TWO

Time

Visual

An hourglass.

Sand turns into stars.

Text

Time never creates character.

Choices do.

ROOM THREE

Purpose

Visual

Cotton fiber.

Thread.

Fabric.

Garment.

One continuous transformation.

Text

We don't make clothing.

We preserve intention.

ROOM FOUR

Legacy

Visual

The garment slowly dissolves.

Only light remains.

Text

Everything fades.

Meaning remains.

ACT V

THE REALIZATION

Everything disappears.

Darkness.

One golden thread appears.

It begins drawing itself.

The thread slowly becomes...

The OWN KARMA emblem.

No sound.

No dramatic reveal.

Only stillness.

Below it.

OWN KARMA

Nothing else.

ACT VI

THE PHILOSOPHY

Now the visitor understands.

Statements.

No paragraphs.

Luxury is temporary.

Meaning is timeless.

Status belongs to others.

Character belongs to you.

Fashion changes.

Purpose remains.

ACT VII

THE COMMUNITY

Instead of...

Join Newsletter

Use something unexpected.

The page becomes black again.

Thousands of tiny gold particles gather.

They slowly form one phrase.

You were never looking for clothing.

Fade.

You were looking for people who see the world differently.

Fade.

Then.

Large typography.

THE KARMA COMMUNITY

No button.

The words themselves are the button.

Hover.

The gold particles move.

Click.

ACT VIII

OWN YOUR KARMA

A floating glass panel emerges.

Minimal.

No borders.

Only soft light.

Instead of asking only for contact details, make it feel like the first page of a story.

WELCOME

This is where your story begins.

Fields:

Name

Email

One word...

Who are you becoming?

Not:

Who are you?

That sounds like a form.

"Who are you becoming?" invites reflection.

Then:

ENTER

Not

Submit.

Not

Join.

Not

Sign Up.

FINAL SCREEN

After they submit...

Don't show:

Thank You.

Instead...

Fade to black.

One final sentence appears.

Every choice creates a story.

This is yours.

OWN KARMA

Then fade out.

Sound Design

The audio should carry as much emotion as the visuals:

- Deep sub-bass drones
 - Wind
 - Soft breathing
 - Heartbeat
 - Tiny metallic particles
 - Distant choir textures
 - Long silences
 - Almost no melody until the logo reveal
-

Color System

- 85% Pure Black (#000000)
- 10% Warm Ivory (#F4F0E8)
- 5% Antique Gold (#C9A55A)

Gold should never become decoration. It should behave like light, appearing only when the visitor discovers something meaningful.

Interaction Principles for the Developer

This should feel less like browsing and more like directing a camera:

- No conventional page scroll. Use smooth cinematic scene transitions.
 - Slow movement. Every animation should have purpose; avoid fast effects.
 - Layered depth. Use parallax, volumetric light, drifting particles, and subtle fog.
 - Minimal interface. Hide navigation during the experience.
 - Reward curiosity. Clicking, hovering, and scrolling should gently reveal new layers rather than overwhelm the visitor.
 - Performance first. Use lightweight WebGL/Three.js effects and provide graceful fallbacks on mobile.
-

Visual References to Share with Your Developer

Instead of referencing fashion websites, reference the feeling and craft of cinematic experiences:

- Journey (video game) — minimalism, emotional progression, use of light.
- Inside (Playdead) — mystery, restrained storytelling.
- Interstellar — scale, silence, awe.
- Dune (2021) — monumental architecture and atmosphere.
- Apple Vision Pro product experience — elegant motion and refined transitions.
- The Mill and ManvsMachine — premium interactive storytelling and motion design.

Your ambition for OWN KARMA has consistently been to build a philosophy-led luxury brand rather than another clothing label. This direction supports that goal by making visitors feel they are entering a world first and discovering products second. If executed with restraint, it can become a memorable brand experience rather than just an attractive landing page.